The length of Haran's life is not given in the Scripture, except that he lived long enough to beget children. If we assume he died just before Abraham left Ur, then his maximum age would be 129 years.

KJV Genesis 11:19 And Peleg lived after he beget Reu two hundred and nine years, and beget sons and daughters.

KJV Genesis 11:24 And Nahor lived nine and twenty years, and beget Terah: 25 And Nahor lived after he beget Terah an hundred and nineteen years, and beget sons and daughters.

We can observe from the case of the birth of Shem that the genealogy lists the more important son first, and not the firstborn. We must not assume that Abraham was born when Terah was 70. As it turns out, he was born when Terah was 130 years old. This is because Abraham was 75 years old when he left Haran when his father died at age 205. (205 - 75 = 130).
This is also confirmed by the book of Acts which says that Abraham left Haran "after" his father died.

Abraham's birth is figured on the basis that he left Haran when his father died at age 205 when he was 75 years old. (205 - 75 = 130).

Sarah's birth is figured from the fact that she was 90 years old when Abraham was 100. (100-90=10)
